Jeremy McGrath— It's Showtime!

Some call record-setting racer Jeremy McGrath the "King of Supercross." Others simply call him "Showtime." Whatever name you choose, there's no denying he's been one of the most dominant stars in the sport.

BMX Boyhood

Jeremy was born on November 19, 1965, and he grew up in southern California. While most supercross racers get started in racing as early as their teens, Jeremy took a different route. He started out competing in BMX (bicycle motocross) races. BMX racers push around the track, making loops and making over bumps, all while pedaling their bikes furiously. In BMX races, Jeremy learned to ride competitively. He also learned the "fun" side of racing that he would later bring to supercross (see page 38).

Breaking into SX

In the time he was a teenager, Jeremy was looking for a new challenge, and decided to give motocross a try. He later found a small motocross racing team. His father found a small motocross team for him, and Jeremy fell for the fun. In three years, he competed in the amateur ranks of supercross. At age 17, Jeremy decided to join the pro ranks of supercross. He moved out to the Los Angeles area and was in his first season. In just the three years between 1982 and 1985, he racked up 13 wins. It felt exactly like a lot. The supercross world was more than just a job, it was a lifestyle.

A Superstar in Supercross

By Jeremy's early 20s, he had a name for himself when it came to the Supercross class in 1991. Then, he used a combination of pure technical skills, blazing speed, and aggressive confidence to win the Supercross class championship. He was the first rider to ever accomplish the feat. Jeremy never looked back. He won 12 Supercross class events and seven AMA Supercross Championships before retiring from full-time riding in 2002. Three months later, he won and won a Supercross Championship at the same venue, Red Bull Grand Prix of the Americas. This combination has helped to raise the sport's popularity to new heights during the 1990s and early 2000s. His list of accomplishments also includes setting a 109.9 mph record for the fastest lap in the sport and representing the Jeremy McGrath Foundation in October 2008. The event drew some of the top MX riders in the world.

After more than 20 Supercross races like this one, Jeremy found himself accepting the trophy and then taking time to talk to his fans about how he'd won yet another title!

The amazing Jeremy McGrath does all the high-flying stunts that helped him win dozens of Championships—and millions of fans around the world!
